Youth!

TWO thousand years have passed since a Macedonian schoolboy swept through the world in triumphant glory. Still young men dream, and conquer. Still hearts are strong in beardless youth, and laugh at wisdom, the recompense of age. And youth succeeds. Youth builds our empires, conquers our deserts, penetrates our jungles, raises our cities. Youth builds our bridges, dams our rivers, explores the air. Youth scraps the obsolete, making the new and the better. Youth goes onward, upward, ever and ever. Youth dreams, lives, loves, and youth fights for her dreams, her life, her love. The blood of youth has been shed on a thousand battlefields, for honor, for virtue, for ideals.

Many years ago youth, the youth of the South, rose for honor against a sacred document impeached and denied. Green fields were black with clotted blood, and dreams and hearts were broken. Shattered and disillusioned youth returned to ravished dreams, scattered lives, lost love, but with the white plume still clean and unsullied. It was all that was left. Youth became age, and handed it to her sons, wide-eyed with the wonder of life and the burden of Reconstruction.

Youth has carried on. Youth is reborn, never dying. The white plume is still clean and waving. Still there are dreams, still there is life, still there is love. Still there is the far cry on blue hills to hearts that tremble and beat high with life unbeatable and unconquerable. Still there are battles to be fought, fields to be conquered, hearts to be won.

They will be fought, they will be conquered, they will be won. The spirit of youth lives on—the spirit of the South lives on. The white plume, and heritage—the heritage of fifteen thousand men, the flower of a magnificent aristocracy, marching in dress uniform across a silent valley to a glorious death.

Dreams—life—love! Always they are with us. And Youth, forever and ever—smiling—bleeding—triumphant!

THOMAS J. SUGRUE.

Fantasy

FANTASY—dreams—shadows black and hurrying. Fear—visions—crying at night when stars are gone, and streets are long and silent. Kaleidoscopic etchings—flitting against white paths of shimmer—nothingness. Regrets—revenge—madness. A velvet kiss—roses dipped in wine—turning black in sunshine. Never go back—never go back.

Worlds—whirling—bubbles of thin glass in eddies of backwash—blather. White arms—fading—fading—calling me on to darkness—fear. Why am I weeping? Where have I been? What is it? Why is it? Life—life—life. The past—fragrant memories—no pain—no heartaches. The present—dark—fleeting, strange—passing—instantaneous—understandable—nothing. What is it? What is it? Future—black apes whirling—merry-go-round—onward—onward—onward. Where?

Three gods have called me on—a woman—wine—dreams. Let me wake to bathe in red wine and feed on kisses—bruised—inarticulate—inexpressable—maddening. Something dragging—calling—back—back—back!

Men—men—screaming, cursing, crying. Mud—mud—mud! They are dead—dead—all dead. Blood—here—on my hands—on my head. I am dying—dying—dreaming. War—pestilence—raging! Glory—glory—hell. They are dead—dead—all dead. Blood—on my hands—on my head.

Wine—kisses—dreams. Dragging me back. No—no—I will not go. Please—please—please. Shadows—faces—dying—dying—dying. Never go back. Never go back. No yesterday. No tomorrow. Only now—dreams—kisses—wine. Bubbles—laughter. Drink—drink—drink.

Bubbles—laughter—bursting—bursting—bursting. Down—down—down. Never go back. Never go back. No yesterday. No tomorrow. Only now. Falling—falling—falling. Down—down—down. Love—life—dreams—

THOMAS J. SUGRUE.

RESUME OF ACTIVITIES

Never before in the history of debating at W. & L. has a team taken such an extended tour as was made this season when H. M. Platt, D. N. Conn, and W. A. Plummer journeyed west as far as Chicago, where they met the team of Chicago-Kent College of Law on the question, "Resolved, that Congress should enact uniform marriage and divorce laws, constitutionality waived." This debate, which was broadcasted by WMAQ, the Chicago Daily News Broadcasting Station, was the first W. & L. debate to be given to a radio audience. The ballots, which were cast by listeners-in from all over the country, gave the local team the victory by a wide margin.

On the return trip, the men debated at both Miami and Ohio Wesleyan Universities, on the question, "Resolved, that trial by jury should be abolished." In the former debate no decision was given, while in the latter, where an audience vote was taken, our men received only four votes less than the home team.

The other outstanding event of the forensic season is to be the debates in Lexington with Princeton University on the subject, "Resolved, that national advertising, as now carried on, is both socially and economically harmful." This discussion will be published in the National University Debaters' Annual, as was the debate last year with the English team. The team for this debate will be composed of R. O. Morrow, J. R. Moore, and W. A. Plummer.

The record of Washington and Lee's orators has also been an outstanding one during the past year, both state contests being won. H. M. Platt took first honors in the Virginia State Oratorical Contest, while J. B. Clower, Jr., won the state elimination contest in the National Contest on the Constitution. He competed in the regional contest as well, but was defeated there.

Too much cannot be said for the work of Professor Marvin G. Bauer, head of the Public Speaking Department and coach of the W. & L. teams. Under his most able direction, our teams have received national recognition, both through the broadcasting of the Chicago debate, and the publication of that with Princeton, as a reference work for other debaters all over the country.

Eugene Oberst

A giant in size, a giant in ability, Eugene G. Oberst comes to our campus to handle the destinies of the football team and to inaugurate the Notre Dame system made so famous by his former tutor, Knute Rockne.

Oberst comes to Washington and Lee wholeheartedly endorsed by Rockne and wholeheartedly backed by the student body. Glorious success cannot be achieved in a day. But constant support and backing will bring the desired. To Eugene Oberst, our sincerest best wishes for your future.

Pat Herron

The resignation of Pat Herron marks the passing of a clean sportsman, one who loved the game for the game's sake and not for the win—and the win at any price. Herron was a gentleman, possessing all the necessary qualifications of such. He was loved by his pupils and admired by his followers.

Herron replaced DeHart, who had served for three years as head football mentor. The passing of Herron means the end of six years of the Warner system of football and the beginning of the Rockne regime.

Varsity Football Resume 1928

From a standpoint of games won and lost, the Washington and Lee Generals suffered possibly the worst football season in history—yet from a standpoint of clean sportsmanship and spirit, the 1928 season surpasses all others.

It took a poor season to bring out the true Washington and Lee spirit—a spirit so great that it is known the country over.

The Generals, under Coach Pat Herron, started off in a blaze of glory, sweeping aside Lynchburg College, 56 to 0 one Saturday, and whipping North Carolina State the following week-end, 38 to 6.

But it was the following Saturday that the downfall in victories began and the beginning of a great spirit became noticeable. Although playing Kentucky to a stand-still in yards gained through the line and around end, the Wildcats were able to win over the Generals, 6 to 0.

The following Saturday the Blue and White was again held scoreless, while the great Mountaineer eleven was marching on to a 22 to 0 victory. It was the great work of Stumpf for West Virginia that made the score so large.

Jumping from Lexington to Knoxville to meet the unconquered Vols, the Herronites fell victims of too much McEver and Hackman. The touchdown on the kick-off took heart out of the team for at least a quarter, but after this the team came back fighting as no General eleven had ever fought before.

After the Volunteer encounter, all hearts were set on the Cavalier battle. The Blue and White completely outclassed the Virginia aggregation in every department except scoring, and the Neale machine eked out a 20 to 13 victory—a fumble being the direct cause of the winning marker, just as was the case against Kentucky.

Princeton, continuing its masterful attack, was able to push across twenty-five points, while the Generals were netting twelve, the first team of the year to net two touchdowns against Roper's team.

The next Saturday saw the "Galloping Ghost" of V. P. L. Peake, in all his glory on Wilson field. The final result being that the Techmen took the encounter, 13 to 7, after letting the Blue and White get a one-point lead earlier in the game.

proved too much for the Generals to stop. He ripped things wide open—at least long enough for the Old Liners to score a touchdown in the third quarter to win their first contest from the Washington and Lee Generals, 6 to 0.

Five days after Fitzpatrick's cohorts had tasted their seventh consecutive defeat, the team met the invincible Florida 'Gators. Gene White was able to send over a lone touchdown for the Blue and White, while Crabtree, Steele, Van Sickle, and company were racing up and down the field for a grand total of sixty.

Despite the poor record—wherever a Washington and Lee team played, it carried off the greatest admiration and respect of opponents as a clean, hard-fighting team. And in victory or loss, the student body backed every member of the blue-jerseyed clan through every minute of play.

Basketball Resume, 1929

Fifteen wins and one loss is the record of Captain Dick Smith's "Point-a-Minute" basketball team. The Generals' mentor, faced with one of the hardest tasks of any court tutor in the Southern conference, whipped his team into great style and furnished Washington and Lee followers the greatest team in the school's history.

Two defeats over Virginia, three over V. P. I., two over Maryland, and one over West Virginia were the season's high lights.

At the opening of the campaign Captain Dick had only three monogram men available, Captain Jim Lowry, Hinnie Groop and Ernie Wood. The first two were veterans of two campaigns and the latter was entering his second term of competition.

To replace "Babe" Spotts, for three seasons one of the leading point scorers in the South, at center, and Jim Nance, Spotts' understudy, was no little task, to say nothing of replacing two stellar forwards in White and Ebert and one veteran guard in Howe. But the Generals' mentor was not discouraged and set about to accomplish this thing. And how he did it.

Cox, a member of the freshman team of the year before, with Jacob, stepped right in to hold down the forwards with Captain Lowry. Then came a third sophomore in Leigh Williams to take over the vacated post at the center of the floor. Hanna, a fourth man on the team for the first time, alternated with the veteran Groop.

The Generals started off the season by defeating Hampden-Sidney 45-26, and then to capture the bacon from Bridgewater 77-22. Georgia suffered its first defeat at the hands of the Generals by losing 44-25.

Randolph-Macon was the next victim and then followed Virginia, V. P. I., William and Mary, Maryland at College Park, and Maryland here. Kentucky played a mean trick on the Generals and administered the only loss of the regular playing season. The Wildcats held the Generals to 30 points while they were ringing the basket for one additional point, enough to spell defeat for the Blue and White.

After the Kentucky loss it was one, two, three until the end of the season. West Virginia, Davidson, V. P. I., Marshall College, V. P. I., and Virginia took the count as the Generals continued to sweep all opposition aside at a "point-a-minute" clip.

In sixteen contests the "point-a-minute" Generals scored 755 points to the opponents' 391. Only two games during the entire season saw the Generals fall below 42 points per game,

These two occasions were the Kentucky game when the Generals lost 30-31, and in the V. P. I. game at Blacksburg, when the Techmen lost 36-17.

V. P. I. scored the fewest points in a single game against the "point-a-minute" machine by ringing the basket for 17 points in two of the three games scheduled. The Smith five averaged 47 points a game while opponents were only able to register 24.

In the post-season tournament the "point-a-minute" machine was unable to function properly, but managed to nose out Louisiana State in the initial round, only to be downed by the less noted Mississippi quint in the second bracket.

But the team cannot win forever, and to win fifteen out of sixteen games during regular season and a total of sixteen games out of eighteen in a year is no record to shun. The 1930 machine should be even stronger with Captain Wood and Hanna at guards, Williams at center, and Cox and Jacob at forwards, and plenty of capable material coming up from the yearling, and ineligibleibles.

Sixth Annual Scholastic Basketball Tournament

The Sixth Annual Scholastic Basketball Tournament was held in the Doremus Gymnasium, March 7, 8 and 9. This tournament has become one of the leading ones of its kind in the South and East, until now its winners are generally conceded to be the champions of preparatory and high schools in the South Atlantic States.

Newport News High School won the tournament by defeating Augusta Military Academy in a hard-fought contest for the championship.

RESUME OF 1928 BASEBALL

Washington and Lee opened its 1928 baseball season on March 20 with a 4 to 0 victory over the Catholic University ball-tossers. Captain Folliard on the hill for the Generals proved invincible and limited the visitors to four scattered hits. Tips and Franklin led in the stick work, each collecting a brace of singles.

Cornell next fell before the fast flying Generals by the score of 3 to 2. Osterman took over the hurling duties for the first time and gave a masterly exhibition. Jones gave the game a Merriwell finish by sending over the two winning runs with a two-bagger after two were out in the ninth.

Duke beat the Generals 5 to 2 in the first game of the Easter road trip. They nipped the offerings of Folliard freely. The Generals came back the next afternoon to trim the Blue Devils 12 to 10 in a slugfest. Radford went the distance for the Blue and White. N. C. State took the measure of Washington and Lee by the count of 5 to 1 when Osterman received ragged support from his mates.

The Generals showed a complete reversal of form in Chapel Hill on the last game of the Carolina invasion and defeated North Carolina university by the score of 6 to 4 in a well played game. Folliard hurled steady ball throughout the contest while Spotts provided the heavy punch with a triple, a double, and a single in four trips to the plate. The Washington and Lee infield cracked in the final innings in the last game of the Easter tour and the University of Richmond chalked up a 6 to 1 victory.

The Generals returned to their own playground on April 12 to nose out North Carolina in a return game by the count of 1 to 0. Captain Folliard was in top form and the Tar Heels were helpless before his fast ball. Slanker's timely hit with Tuggles on base gave the Generals their only score.

The "summer time" rule of V. P. I. robbed the Generals of three runs they scored in the ninth inning and the score was reverted back to the end of the eighth to give V. P. I. a 5 to 3 victory in Blacksburg. The Gobblers drove Folliard from the mound, but were unable to touch Osterman. Spotts led the Washington and Lee assault with two hits, one of which was a home run.

Virginia blanked the Generals in their first meeting, 3 to 0. Melrose of the Cavaliers was unhittable while Folliard's support went wrong at critical times. The Blue and White turned the tables on the N. C. State Wolfpack and defeated them 4 to 2. Folliard hurled a beautiful game while Warthen, White and Hickman did the heavy hitting.

Osterman faltered twice and the Quantico Marines slipped over the necessary tallies to beat the Generals 3 to 2 on May 4, but the Blue and White came back the next day to drive Wallace, the William and Mary ace, from the mound to hang up an 8 to 1 decision over the Indians. Slanker's home run with two on the sacks was the feature.

Washington and Lee, still enraged over the "summer time" rule, defeated V. P. I. in a return game by the count of 4 to 1. Osterman did the hurling, and Warthen and Tips each collected three hits. In their last home appearance of the year, the Generals divided a double bill with Maryland. Folliard was invincible in the first game, but Maryland rode the offerings of Radford in the nightcap. Spotts, Jones and Eiglebach led the batting.

Virginia again defeated Washington and Lee in the final game of the 1928 campaign, 3 to 1.

Track Resume, 1928

Individual brilliance rather than the existence of a strong, well-balanced team, painted the brightest side of the 1928 track season for Washington and Lee. Five defeats and one victory in meets with rivals from the South Atlantic section was the result of the seven-weeks' campaign, University of Richmond being the only school to dip its colors to the Generals' track and field entrants.

Duke, North Carolina University, North Carolina State, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and the University of Virginia meets were so close that they would have been won had it not been for the chronic weakness of the Blue and White weight entrants.

The individual performances of Captain Pete Reardon, Captain-elect Backus, and Sandifer provided cheer for W. and L. supporters in every dual competition. Reardon was consistently flashy in his timber-topping and javelin hurling, while Sandifer, entering the dashes and jumps, was high-point man in three meets. Backus, returning to school after a year at Oklahoma, showed his old form in the middle distances, and was a dependable point-gainer in these events.

The season opened March 31, when Coach Forest Fletcher took his squad to Durham to meet the Duke Blue Devils. The millionaires took advantage of a clear, cool day to down the invaders 71 2-3 to 54 1-3, scoring heavily in the distance races and the throwing events. Sandifer scored a dozen points in this meet.

The following week Fetzer's N. C. U. proteges came to Wilson Field, and on an unusually good track day for so early in the season, took the long end of a 78 5-6 to 47 1-6 count. The redeeming feature of the day was the fine form of Sandifer, who scored 17 points, over a third of the Generals' total.

From Raleigh came N. C. State April 16th for the Blue and White's third meet of the year. Ten points alone separated the competing aggregations when the last event was over, the Staters holding the advantage of a 68-58 score. The meet was lost when the Carolinians scored heavily in the field events, the Generals having a chance for victory until the last event, the broad jump, was tabulated.

The only win of the season came April 21, on a cold, windy, rainy and generally disagreeable day. Richmond University succumbed on a soggy track 69 2-3 to 56 1-3, after a meet which left sore legs for the runners and stiff arms and backs for the pit and weight men on both teams.

V. P. I. put the Generals to rout in Blacksburg April 30, running up a 84-36 count before the afternoon was over. The meet had been postponed from the 28th due to the former day being snowy and cold. Sandifer was again high point man for the day, scoring 11 points. Tech won with a well-balanced team, which took almost everything in the throwing events, the Generals' weakest spot.

The season ended with the invasion of Wilson Field by the Virginia Cavaliers May 7. With a small gallery and a cold, rainy day, the Charlottesville team took the desirable section of a 70 1-2 to 55 1-2 score, although at times only a point or two separated the competitors until the weight events were called.

Wrestling Resume, 1929

Two victories and five losses in seven matches constituted the record of the Washington and Lee wrestling team for the season of 1929.

With the failure of Captain-elect Jim Tully to return to school Coach Mathis was faced with the problem of building up a team with but little varsity material from the preceding season.

The return of former Captain J. F. Rule to competition strengthened the Generals' chances as they departed on their Northern invasion. Princeton defeated the Generals 26 to 8, Rule obtaining a fall. Against the Army, Rule and Belser obtained decisions to gain the only Washington and Lee scores, while the Army matmen were marking up 28.

The Generals returned to Lexington to meet the strong North Carolina U. team who trounced them 22 to 6. Kaplan and Bolton won decisions. The losing streak was broken with the invasion of Doremus gymnasium by the Virginia mat men. By virtue of Palmer's maneuvering to hold his heavier man to a decision and Bolton's fall over his opponent, the Generals were able to eke out a 16-14 victory.

Coach Mathis employed the same tactics against North Carolina State, and the Generals won 16 to 12.

On the same trip, Duke, wrestling masterfully, gained a 21-11 victory over the Generals. Kaplan and Bolton continued their victorious march against Southern conference opponents with victories.

The final meet of the season saw Virginia Poly win over the Generals 15½ to 12½. Kaplan lost his opportunity to win a Southern conference championship by being defeated by Captain Andes of V. P. I.

During the season Rule was elected captain and Dick Bolton gained the cup offered by Coach A. E. Mathis for the highest point score during the season.

Boxing Resume, 1929

Washington and Lee marked its return to competition within the intercollegiate squared circle this year by scoring a victory, a tie and two defeats in four bouts.

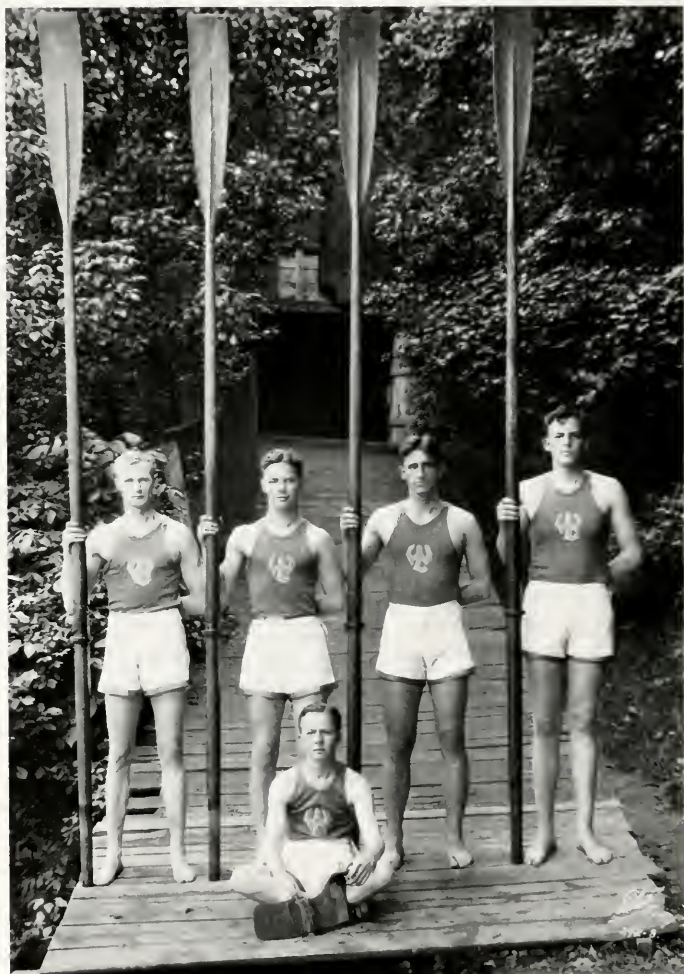

The season was opened against the William and Mary pugs, who were defeated 5 to 2, with Captain Julian Black and Jack Crosland leading the Generals' attack.

On the trip through Carolina the Generals were defeated 6 to 1 by Duke and 7 to 0 by North Carolina. Robinson was the only winner for the Generals on the trip.

The final match of the year held at Lexington, resulted in a tie of 3-all with the Catholic University pugs. Captain Black, Ward and Faulkner accounted for victories over the visitors. Faulkner scored the quickest knockout of the season when he floored his Catholic University opponent in less than one minute of the first round.

The team was handled by former Captain Bill Price, who took over the coaching duties of both the varsity and freshmen teams.

The squad was built chiefly on new material with a view toward development for later years.

Junior Prom

*Love, will you cry when the young, white dawn
Creeps through the trees and wets the lawn?
Love, will you weep if I say good-bye,
Or sigh if our love should die?*

*Holding you close in the whirling waltz—
Wondering whether your lips are false,
Wondering why, if your lips are true—
So many others dance with you—*

*Perfume and kisses have made me sad,
Music and wine have made me mad,
Prom girl I wonder if you would care
To love me a little, or do you dare?*

*Kiss me and put my heart in tune—
The Dance will be over all too soon;
Let me have love for a little while
Kiss me—kiss me a bit, and smile!*

*Dance and laugh, and sing and play—
Drink to our love, and drinking, pray
That life will be always, ever thus,
Laughter and tears, and love, and us.*

No. 1758493766 (jumping up in a rage after the prison movie show): "Dammit, a serial, and I'm to be hung next week."

OLD STORY

Pout! little girl, and see if I care—
You've broken two dates and you're getting the air;
Our Prom date is off 'till you act as you should,
(And gee, little girl, I wish that you would).

Glower! you brute! Horrid old bear—
Date up with other girls—see if I care.
Our Prom date is off until you act good,
(And gee, little boy, I wish that you would.)

Fancy Dress

Young, heedless children, lifting hands to love;

Living for now, and laughing at to-morrow—

Trusting in life—a crystal ball above,

Kisses and wine, insensible to sorrow.

Bubbles and bits of half-intended laughter,

Perfume and passion strewn along the way.

Madly the vagrant tune denies an after,

Madly the dancers fight against the day.

Youth, you are drunk with life and joy of
love,

Jasmine and rose have scattered all but joy.

Moonlight and mist and love that lives in giving.

They are for you to-night, young girl and boy.

Child of the East in tiny, silken covers,

Cling to your Lochinvar and whirl away;

"Never the twain shall meet" is not for lovers—

Not for the night—and who shall fear the day?

Dance! and forget that life is not all pleasure—

Kisses and wine upon a scarlet mouth—

Dance! and be glad that you have such a treasure—

Youth—and the love and romance of the South!

Nell—"Why is Mac so cold and reserved?"

Do you think your son will ever forget what he is learning in college?

"I hope so; he can't make a living dancing, drinking, and necking."

She: "No, you can't kiss me and you can't hug me—you can't hold my hand, either."

He: "Well, how in hell are we going to do any necking, then?"

"What a smooth gear shift you have on your car."

"Hey, will you take your hand off my knee?"

Witt—"Not if there were enough members in the club."

FANTASY IN PURPLE

A long time ago, I remember well,
Alone in a poorhouse a fair maid did dwell.
She lived with her mother and father serene,
Her age it was red, and her hair was nineteen.

Nearby lived her lover, a bantam backed rooster

Hump-legged as well.

He said, "Let us fly, by the light of yon star,
For you are the eye of my apple, you are."

"Oh, no," quoth the maid. "You will bring us disgrace."

Said the maid as she buried her hands in her face.

Then the villain he slew that maiden so fair,
And he dragged her around by the head of her hair.

Now the father appeared.

He gazed at the sad sight with eyes in his tears.

He knelt down beside her, the cold corpse he kissed.

He rushed with his throat at the murder's fist.
And drew a horse-pistol he'd raised from a colt.

The villain he flew to a chimney nearby,

And he said, "I shall fly!"

And he flew up to flue.

*Sentimental laddie, sentimental lassie.
Sentimental, sitting in the moonlight.
"Do you believe in dreams?" says she.
"Yes, I believe in dreams," said he.
"For I believe in you dear,
And you're a perfect dream, dear."
With that he knelt and kissed her
As often as he wished to.
She softly whispered in his ear,
"I wish you'd dream some more dear."*

THE DRUNKARD'S CURSE

*I've followed the hearse of all my hopes,
And buried them one by one.
Now gaze on me and you shall see
What the curse of drink has done.
I had a home, and wife, and a child,
But now I'm all alone.
Oh, God, I never should have taken
That first insidious ice cream cone.
But I was young, and my friends were false—
"One will not hurt you," they said.
And they started me there
With a chocolate eclaire.
Oh, God, what a life I've led,
My mother said, "Wilky, lay off the vanilly,
Them phosphates will lead you astray,
The devil himself is in sasparrilly,
His den in them fountains so gay."
But fool that I was, I laughed her to scorn,
I thought I could take it or leave it alone.
That very same day I had a caramel frappe;
Oh, God, if I had only known.
And that was the start of my downfall, my friends,
And I went down the pathway of vice,
To a pineapple ice,
And a hellish banana split.
'Twas then that an angel came into my life.
"I believe in you, Clarence," she said.
And I loved her so dearly
That for a whole year, nearly,
A temperate life I led.
Then a baby came as babies will,
And grew to a babbling child.
But all the time,
I longed for the juice of a lime,
And the thought of it drove me wild.
One night I chanced by an ice cream den,
I slinked in with a sinful slink.
Ten hours later, I staggered out,
The victim again of drink.
That night shall remain on my mind,
And haunt me to the day of my death.
As I kissed her goodnight, my child
Cried in accents wild:
"Father, you've raspberry crush on your breath."
And that was the end of my happy home,
And now I am all alone.
Oh, God, I never should have taken
That first insidious ice cream cone.*

The Story of Battling Billy Bludsoe of Beaver Bluff

By JOHN T. RAYMOND

Battling Billy woke up with a snort, he usually did, snorts were quite in order at Beaver Bluff and Billy was a loyal citizen. Besides about the same time every morning, Bludsoe's pet cow licked her master's face. She liked his brand of night cream, so Billy woke with a snort.

The water in the basin was frozen, a common occurrence, it happened in the night, the nights were as cold at Beaver Bluff as the citizens were tough.

Then it suddenly came to him that he had work on hand; there were, he remembered, babies to be drowned and as Billy was the official baby drowner, he busied himself with his toilet. He got as far as his ears and gave up with a sigh of ennui. Billy was a bit lazy and the contemplation of all the undrowned babies gave him a feeling of utter weariness somewhat akin to the sensation that Hannibal must have experienced as he viewed the Alps in the distance. He hastily dried his face and taking a couple of stale dog-biscuits from the bread bin, sat down at the table and munched them slowly. Billy was as slow in actions as in thought and the dog biscuits were good for his teeth. "Slow but sure" was his motto and in his official capacity he pointed with pride to the fact that his babies never rose to the surface after their initial plunge.

While he was thus engrossed with the dog biscuits the echo of what sounded like a dull rumble came to him. It grew until it became a roar and seemed to be from the vicinity of his front yard.

Billy threw the door open and there before him was a motley gathering of the local citizenry shouting themselves hoarse and brandishing all sorts of agricultural implements whose only duties in life came at such occasions as the present.

"Kill 'im, hang 'im, drag the rascal out and horsewhip him," and hundreds of other violent expressions came from the throats of the mob. To Billy, the evident object of all this discussion, it appeared that the people were a bit louder than usual this morning. He was used to it; it was a daily occurrence that people objected to having their offspring drowned. Every morning they came around and told him so. But this morning, as I said before, a new note seemed to have crept, it went farther than the usual righteous indignation motif, in fact it bordered on the critical. To Billy, anything that sounded like criticism, was a thorn in the side, so to speak, a burr in the saddle blanket, and what not, and the blood of the Bludsoe's boiled.

However, he might be misjudging them, so in a well-controlled voice, he said:

"My friends, what is it? I seem to detect a tinge of disfavor in your words. May I go so far as to ask an explanation of the same? Have I failed in any particulars in the round of my official duties? I should like to say that any adverse criticism will be regarded in the light of a personal insult, and I shall deal with the offender accordingly. However, do not let that deter you from expressing your honest sentiments and be assured that I shall listen with an open mind to anything that you may desire to say. For I have always maintained that a plaudit in the ear is worth two in the throat. Proceed, my friends."

A big burly fellow, evidently the spokesman, stepped out in front of the assemblage, and clearing his throat and brushing his mustache aside to permit the sound to pass through, said in a very high voice. (He was an ex-pearl diver in the shark infested waters of the south seas.)

"Begging your pardon sir, and hoping you will not think me offensive, but Sandy MacDowell has requested me to ask you that when you drowned little Sandy, number nineteen, last week, did you notice that his hands were sticky?"

"That his hands were sticky?" queried Billy, somewhat mystified.

"Yes, that his hands were sticky," replied the questioner. "You see it's this way, it seems that when Sandy was figuring his year's accounts, he found the balance short one cent and he remembered that Sandy, No. 19, had made off with a penny which had been given him to play with, and that he had gone somewhere and lost it and the possibility of the jam pot as a likely hiding place had occurred to him.

THE END

Afterword

MY LABORS are ended and I present the result for your discrimination. I offer the 1929 Calyx, hoping that it will give you a glimpse of the fleeting beauty of a year at Washington and Lee, and in future years, may you look back upon it as a record of one of the happiest years of your life. I wish to take this opportunity to thank those who have helped and co-operated in making this book:—the Staff, Marion M. Junkin, who has carried out the art theme; Benson Printing Company, Capitol Engraving Company, White Studio, and the Y. M. C. A.

*"The king's a beggar, now the play is done:
All is well-ended if this suit be won,
That you express content; which we will pay,
With strife to please you, day exceeding day:
Ours be your patience then, and yours our parts;
Your gentle hands lend us, and take our hearts."*

Clerk (preparing to make out the certificate): "How old are you, young fellow?"

Young Man: "Twenty-four, sir."

Clerk: "And how old is this girl?"

Y. M.: "Seventeen, sir."

Clerk: "What! Don't you know that a girl under eighteen must have her parents' permission to get married?"

Y. M.: "Yes, but who in the hell do you think that is standing over there in the doorway with that shotgun—Daniel Boone?"

“The proof of the music is the dancing thereto--”

A pudding is eaten, a book is read, a movie seen, a pipe smoked, while an orchestra must be danced to to prove its smoothness.

Oliver Naylor and His Orchestra can stand the test.

Their superb entertainment is novel and most enjoyable, and their Southern style of dance rhythm is practically irresistible.

Engagements are booked through Oliver Naylor Orchestras, Suite 404 at 1650 Broadway, New York City.
